

Louis-Peter Moll

Call: 1998

Louis is an experienced and skilled advocate who practices principally in the Scottish Jurisdiction but is dual-qualified and appears regularly in courts in the North of England. On rare occasions he returns to his practice further south. He is a full member of 18 Red Lion Court as well as running his primary Scottish Practice from Compass Chambers in Edinburgh.

Having called to the English Bar in 1998 he built up a substantial and well respected criminal practice. He conducted cases on behalf of Revenue and Customs Prosecutions Office, the Financial Services Authority and the Crown Prosecution Service. He regularly represented individuals and companies prosecuted by those agencies as well as by the Health and Safety Executive, the Serious Fraud Office and the Environment Agency.

In 2005, through the Bar Human Rights Committee, he spent 4 months in Kingston, Jamaica assisting in the preparation and presentation of first instance and appellate capital murder cases. He has also taken pro bono referrals from the Environmental Law Foundation, assisting individuals and communities with environmental legal problems.

In 2006 he returned to Scotland where he quickly established a well-regarded practice and a reputation for thorough, independent and intelligent advocacy. He has regularly appeared before the High Court of Justiciary (both first instance and appellate) as well as before the Court of Session and the Solicitors' Disciplinary Tribunal. He has regularly advised on Proceeds of Crime, Judicial Review and was involved in the early stages of the Rosepark Nursing Home Inquiry.

Additional Information

2006 CPS General and Rape Panel's; Grade 4
1998 Called to the Bar
(Diplock Scholar, Sir Joseph Cantley prize winner)
1997 Researcher Environmental Law Foundation, London
1996 LLB Hons, University of Manchester

Memberships

Member of the Criminal Bar Association (England)
Member of the Faculty of Advocates Criminal Bar Association (Scotland)
Member of the Environmental Law Foundation
Member of the Association of Regulatory and Disciplinary Lawyers